

Arta

Before the middle of the 19th century, Arta was the true center of Romaniote Jewry. The indigenous Jews of Arta, Greek speaking Romaniote Jews, would be supplemented by Jews from Apulia Italy and Spain, as persecutions and forced exile reached those Jewish communities further west. When Arta became part of the Modern State of Greece in 1881, Ioannina was still under Ottoman Turkish rule, not becoming part of Modern Greece until 1913. During that 32 year interim, commerce and trade in Arta would suffer and many of the Jews who relied on trade with Ioannina, moved to other Jewish communities in Greece, notably Athens, Ioannina and Corfu. The Jews in Arta were engaged in a number of occupations, many having to do with textiles. They owned small shops but also were engaged in commercial enterprises that took them to other parts of the Mediterranean.

The community supported a Jewish school and a synagogue. According to the 1939 census the community numbered 500. At the time of the deportations, the official count was 384.

On the night of March 24, 1944, timed to coincide with the approach of Greek Independence Day and the round-up of most of the remaining Jewish communities in Greece, the Jews of Arta were arrested by the Germans and deported to Auschwitz-Birkenau.

Official records note that 347 were deported, 28 escaped deportation by hiding in surrounding villages and 30 returned from the camps, leaving the number of 317 as the official number of those murdered. In 1947, only 60 Jews made up the Jewish community of Arta and, in 1959, the Community was officially dissolved. Most of the survivors had moved to Athens or immigrated to either the United States or Israel. Later, the Jewish cemetery was expropriated and the site where the Synagogue once stood was allotted to the Municipality<sup>1</sup>. Other than the remains of a few former Jewish homes and a recent plaque noting the loss of the community, nothing is left of the former Jewish Community of Arta.

We have worked for a number of years on the list of the Jews of Arta who perished in the Holocaust. We have included the names of Jews who were born in Arta but deported from elsewhere. There are more names on our main list than the official number of 317. Even with trying to make sense of duplications at Yad Vashem, we have had to live with discrepancies and errors. We have tried our best.

For additional information on the Jews of Arta, access our article in Archives on this website. "The Jews of Arta," by Constantinos A. Tsiliyianni, Chronika [issue 192: July/August 2004]
